Chapter 1 by Kathy Hall

Leaders are chastised in life; yet rise to be legends in death.

They are remembered for the very thing, belief, or cause that in life; mankind lacked reception for. Why? This is the question attempt; but the unanswered question leaves only room for denial, judgment and the followers in ability to accept that some are created to ask; while others are blessed to answer.

In one way or another mankind lacks the ability to accept the truth. Martyrs are created by people who can not face the truth. There for they are left with no answer. The truth is the only answer. Leaders are not afraid to speak the truth, yet they are hated for it. Ironically most people are scared of change and Leadership requires it.

The leader spoke and only offered what was requested; eternity request our truth. And the Leader shouldered every immoral remark; knowing in his death they would be able to see. WE are all called to be leaders or assistance.

The leader spoke and only did what was requested be done. The People hate a know-it-all. After death he is remembered and we write constitutions based on his belief. Death gave him a voice, and all who turned their heads at him heard his voice in truth.

From the lights to the pavement; death created memories of truth. What have we done they were right. Imagine.

Legends of the fall who tried to save one if not for all.

To all the leaders past on; who died in peace based on the legacy of the words, the truth, the answer, all the wisdom they left to man only to die and finally be heard

In life one must take the stand and humbly embrace metamorphosis.
Change is the only thing we can count on.

They were better as a memory; than leaders who were proud too role play illucid know-it-alls.
